

NOTHING ELSE TO DO

REASON AN OKLAHOMA FARMER TURNED COUNTERFEITER.

As He Could Not Make Spendthrift In Any Other Way He Bought Some Inferior Metal and Started Up a Mint in Opposition to the Government—His Goods Were Poor, However, and He Did Not Pass Many Until He Was Detected—Mr. Bowie Arrested by a Texas Officer at His Home in Perry.

Guthrie, O. T., April 24.—The Journal of Oklahoma City has the following account of the arrest of a farmer for counterfeiting:

Oscar W. Owens was arrested late last night by Marshal Ryan and Deputy Jones just as he had succeeded in passing a counterfeit silver dollar on the clerk at the Union restaurant. He had succeeded in passing several dollars in the city on different parties, all of which have not yet been taken up. He had, when arrested, nine dollars and a half dollar in his pocket. The money is not an extra good counterfeit, but is sufficiently good to fool anyone not suspecting anything of the kind. The dollars look like good dollars that have been carried in a greasy wallet or handled by dirty fingers. Anyone could tell the difference if he would think to test the ring of the coin, which in the case of bogus coin is never clear as in the true coin. Owens lives a few miles from this city in the country, and gave his reason for passing the bogus coin that he could not make an honest living and so took to counterfeiting as the only means to get a living. He will get a living from the government for a while, as well as a trade to work at in all probability. He is now in the county jail but will be taken to the federal prison at Guthrie soon.

WRONG MAN PERRY.
The Democrat of Perry says: Deputy United States Marshal Mandeville of Graham, Young County, Texas, today arrested Henry T. Perry, well known in Perry, claimant to West Perry, for murder that it is alleged Bowie committed more than twenty years ago.

The arrest this morning caused a great surprise among the people of Perry. Mandeville will take his prisoner to Paris, Tex., tonight. It is alleged that Bowie killed an unknown Irish peddler in 1876, at the mouth of Blitter creek on the Washita river.

It seems that twenty-five years ago a noted gang of outlaws had a ranch on the Washita river near the little town of Erin in the Chickasaw nation. The depredations of these outlaws became so frequent and they were so terrorizing that United States soldiers were compelled to camp near the rendezvous of the Lee outlaws. One evening in the autumn of 1876 a young man named Garvin's ranch inquired where the Lee ranch was located. Said man was suspected to be a member of the Lee gang, and the soldiers were immediately notified, and that night went to the place where this young man was directed, hoping, not only to capture him, but to capture all the Lee gang. An Irishman whose name is unknown to the officers of the law and who was a peddler for a man named Murray, who ran a store at Erin Springs, piloted the soldiers to the Lee ranch and to a house where the young man was directed. The gang was arrested the next morning about daylight by the soldiers and they moved some miles south to a dugout where the party were to get breakfast. While the soldiers were in the dugout at breakfast, a conversation passed between the young man prisoner and the Irishman, and the young man accused the Irishman of leading the soldiers to his lodging place and caused his arrest. One word was enough to another and later a heated quarrel took place and the young man shot the Irishman dead on the spot and then jumped on his horse and left in great haste.

The soldiers ran out of the dugout and shot at the young man who was 200 yards away and killed the horse, but the young man made good his escape on foot. Thus it was. For fourteen years no one knew who the young man was. The officers of the United States claim that Henry Bowie, some six years ago let a word drop that indicated he was that young man and his silence he was the murderer of the unknown Irishman. In the past six years the officers allege that he has let many things drop that indicate that he was the young man, and they claim they have a waven web of evidence, or will do so in the United States court. JILED GIRL STOPPED IT
Due Sweet Wedding Comes to a Most Infortunate Conclusion.

Toledo, O., April 24.—Catholic circles of Toledo and Springfield are stirred up wonderfully over the sensational developments in the proposed marriage of William Duffy of this city and Miss Agnes McQuirk of Springfield. Duffy is connected with the Toledo Gas Fixture company, and was to have been married to Miss McQuirk at St. Raphael's church in Springfield yesterday morning. Miss Lucy Madden of Toledo, however, interfered. Miss Madden resides at No. 54 Ferner street. She is a very respectable, refined young lady, and has a large circle of acquaintances.

The story told by her mother and neighbors is to the effect that two years ago Mr. Duffy began keeping company with her. He became a regular visitor at her home, and in the course of six months was looked upon by the family and relatives of the young lady as a tutor to her hand. He acted toward the young lady as a lover should. He made her his confidant, he told her of all his business affairs, and in other ways made her his partner in all his interests. Christmas a year ago he made a present of a diamond ring to Miss Madden, and on her birthday he presented her with a handsome gold watch. She accepted the gifts as coming from her intended. Not long since they began to talk of marriage. The young lady had been called upon by Mr. Duffy for two years, and she began to think it time for them to come to some definite understanding.

Mr. Duffy, as the story goes, coincided with her views, but urged a postponement of the affair until he could settle some business matters. She acquiesced and he finally fixed the date. He said the ceremony could be held at once immediately after Lent, and finally determined that the banns should be published on Easter Sunday. Everything went well for a while, but Mr. Duffy, according to the story told by Mrs. Madden, became irritable, and finally picked a quarrel over a trivial matter. This occurred in April. Up to Easter Sunday Miss Madden looked for a reconciliation, but no overtures were made. The young lady became almost heart-broken. On Easter Sunday St. Patrick's church was crowded. Miss Madden, her parents, relatives and friends were in the church. It was the day when Miss Madden's betrothal was to be published to the world. She had faith in the man she loved, and felt that he would be true to his troth, and that the day would end happily for her. But when the priest read the banns from the altar her heart failed within her. Instead of the announcement of the marriage of William Duffy to Lucy Madden it was read "William Duffy, of Toledo, O., to Agnes McQuirk, of Springfield, O."

Miss Madden and Mr. Duffy were known to the entire congregation. The members knew of the understanding between them, and would hardly believe their ears. They looked askance at each other, and finally directed their eyes to the blushing girl who sat in the congregation, suffering from the wound of her feelings. Disappointment and mortification were written on her features, and she became an object of sympathy. She went to the priest and told him all. He immediately wrote to Rev. Mr. Sidley, of St. Raphael's church of Springfield. Rev. Sidley saw Mr. Duffy, and from what he said was able to learn the latter convinced him that Miss Madden had no grounds to interfere with the marriage, and the ceremony was set for yesterday morning. At the other end of the most prominent Catholics of the city of Springfield gathered at the church to witness the ceremony. At the bride's home a splendid wedding breakfast was served. The bride and groom, and the friends of the bride were seated at tables where they could be admired by the wedding guests. But at the church there was a hitch. Rev. Mr. Sidley said that there were new evidences of Mr. Duffy's unfaithfulness, and postponed the ceremony until this morning.

Last night Mr. Duffy and Miss McQuirk went to Cincinnati to see Archbishop Elder and get his consent to the marriage. They returned on Saturday. They were referred to Bishop Horstmann, of Cleveland, who is now in Washington, D. C., in consequence of which the marriage has been indefinitely postponed.

HID DIAMONDS IN A HAM
Kitchen Girl in the Big Steal of the Burden Jewelry in New York.

New York, April 24.—The arrest today of Ella Stinkquist, formerly a domestic in the house of J. Townsend Burden, has brought out the fact that it was through her that the secret of the diamond robbery leaked out, and also that she had herself concealed the valuable stones in a large ham, and then laughed at the police as they took the ham from a pig in the pantry while searching the Burden residence. It has also been discovered that had the police been allowed to carry out their plan of search, Burden's maid and his assistant, Turner, they would have found the jewels at the time, as they were afterwards removed from the ham and the two men carried them strapped around their bodies for several days. Burden, however, had implicit confidence in the men, and refused to allow them to be humiliated by a search.

The kitchen maid arrested today was dismissed from the Burden's employ for drunkenness. After leaving the house she went to live with friends on Fifteenth street, but frequently afterward called on Mrs. Lucien Boyle, wife of the chief. It was while in a maudlin condition one afternoon that she told the story of the robbery to Mrs. Boyle, plainly stating that it had been committed by Dunlop and Turner. Dunlop was her lover.

When the news of Mrs. Burden, who told Mr. Burden about it, and as Dunlop and Turner were known to be in Europe, J. S. Morgan & Co., and other friends of the Burdens on the other side were asked to testify themselves in the matter. The Scotland Yard authorities got descriptions of the men and their arrest was only a matter of time.

When the Burden appeared before the grand jury on Monday he not only gave evidence against Dunlop and Turner, but also against the Stinkquist girl. Margaret Kruser, Mrs. Burden's maid, who used to sleep with the girl, also testified to facts which would indicate an intimacy between Dunlop and Miss Stinkquist. The result was that three indictments were handed down, three warrants issued and the only one that could be served in this country was served immediately. The Stinkquist girl was arrested in the Fifteenth street house and arraigned in part I, general sessions, today before Recorder Goff, who committed her to the county without bail.

Mr. Burden and Assistant District Attorney Lindsay will sail for Europe tomorrow on the Teutonic. Detectives Evanshew and McAulley will follow on Saturday. It is believed that efforts will be made to bring the London prisoners back immediately.

The Greatest Medium.

THE WICHITA WEEKLY EAGLE

Established in 1872 and for twenty-four years has stood at the head of all weeklies in the state. There are people in this county who have read it from its first issue and are readers today. Why do they read it? Simply because they are after the reliable and latest news and can only get it through this medium. It has more columns of live reading than all the weeklies in the county. Business men are approached daily by representatives and even proprietors of these local papers with the stereotyped expression that they have the largest circulation in the county. Well, we pay the postage. They do not. If they are the local papers they claim they are hard to locate. There have been hundreds of them in the twenty-four years that the Eagle has been in the field and have died as many more must die under their false representation. You want a good medium to do your advertising in; you want

VALUE FOR YOUR MONEY.

You want an established medium; you want to patronize those who are capable of patronizing you. You receive the benefits from the seventy employees of the Eagle; you get more circulation from the Weekly Eagle than you can anywhere else. The readers of the Weekly get four times as much live news for 60c as they get from the other weeklies for $1.00 and $1.50. This is the time when price and quantity tell. You get all you can and pay as little as you can. Therefore the Weekly Eagle is the paper for the advertiser and reader alike.
